

GROWN-UP GUIDE

The museum of almost anything

This sock is a mountain.

An everyday object becomes the setting for a tiny adventure. Today you are making an exhibition to look at, touch and tell stories about.

1 Set up the little museum

Use pages 2 and 3. A grown-up cuts out the stage and characters, then folds the dotted lines. Fold the character tabs backwards. Thicker paper helps; lean the backdrop against a book if needed.

2 Choose ONE object from home

Try a clean sock, a wooden spoon or some scrunched paper. Put it on the stage. What could it be in Girafoufou's tiny world? Add a door or window if you like.

3 Open your exhibition

The child tells or shows the story. A grown-up writes their title on a label from page 4. Turn the object around: a new story begins.

CUT AND FOLD THE STAGE

Your very own tiny museum

THE MUSEUM OF ALMOST ANYTHING

One object from home.
A whole world to invent.

FOLD HERE: STAND THE BACKDROP UP

YOUR OBJECT TAKES THE STAGE

Solid line: cut. Dotted line: fold.

Invite Girafoufou in.

A grown-up cuts around each outline. The props are optional.

Lean the props against your object, or use a little tape to hold them in place. Your world does not need to look like anyone else's.

KEEP EXPLORING

What happens here?

It starts to rain...

Where could the friends find shelter?

A friend wants to cross...

What kind of way across could you invent?

Turn your object around...

What could it be from this side?
